Address format

A two-character space separates the postcode from the delivery office name.

The address should include:

- the addressee identification (family name, first name, company name);
- delivery point (name of street, square, place, locality, district and house number, position number, floor number) or delivery service (poste restante, P.O. Box + number or indication of letter box number);
- routing information (postcode followed by name and number of delivery office).

Examples

Home delivery (in localities with post office):

Note: in the case of a locality without a street, the addressee's identity will be followed only by the locality name and house number (digit). The last line will indicate the postcode of the delivery office, followed by its name (almost always the same as the locality name).
