Address format

The addresses of certain major cities, such as Prague or Brno, contain a one to three figures code after the locality name (e.g. PRAHA 11) which identifies (together with the locality name) the delivery post office.

Locality given in the address beside the postcode has a delivery post office. The locality without a delivery post office will appear on the line above the postcode.

The street number often consists of two numbers separated by a slash. The first number is a unique district-related building number which doesn't depend on the street where the building is located, the second number is the street number;
